

Senior Performance Analyst

A position has arisen within Performance Analytics Group of this leading city based asset manager for an experienced performance analyst. This group is responsible for providing performance & attribution support to all business groups within London and back up support to other global locations. With the move to a new global platform the role will involve taking responsibility for a number of performance related tasks to assist the group reach their goals. Explicitly the role will need someone who understands performance, attribution as well as composite calculation and has an analytical flare willing to face issues head on. Knowledge across asset classes is essential especially Fixed Income together with experience of using attribution systems such as Wilshire preferred. Exposure to WM & CAPS would also be a plus

The ideal candidate will have the following attributes:

- Be educated to degree level, mathematical / engineering bias preferred
- Have demonstrable experience of performance knowledge
- Strong interpersonal skills, written and verbal
- Sound technical performance experience
- Strong spreadsheet skills to macro level
- Solid problem solving and analytical skills.
- Team player approach across business groups
- Change the bank mentality
- Demonstrate ability to lead rather than follow

This is a great opportunity for someone to develop their performance skills as well as be part of a dynamic group that has recently moved on to a global operating platform and is moving from a process orientated environment to a value added environment.

For further information please contact Alex Brown 0207 847 8878 or email alex@meredithbrown.com